Fiscal 2018-2019 Annual Report

A Message from Board Chair Derek McDermott

Chilton Foundation strengthens community with support of many

The Chilton Area Community Foundation continues to help and support philanthropy in our community. With such help and support, we now have 47 funds established by families, businesses and other entities. These funds provide a wide variety of support in the community — from important nonprofit services to scholarships to assist Chilton High School graduates pursuing higher education.

I would like to thank everyone who has supported our mission, including those who have served on our board and committees, many who have supported us with generous donations, and those who have established a fund, thereby creating a legacy for the future.

I encourage anyone with an interest in giving back to the community to contact our Foundation. We can show you the many ways your charitable goals can come to fruition.

Library kits help people with memory loss

A dementia-friendly facility meets the changing need of people diagnosed with dementia along with their care partners and friends. It is an opportunity to overcome the stigma and isolation experienced by many with dementia. Chilton Public Library was awarded a $1,790 grant from CACF as they become a more dementia-friendly library. The money will create themed "reminisce" kits that can be shared between friends/care partners and people with memory loss. Themes include farming, sewing, gardening, cooking and more. Kits may include books, simple hand-eye coordination games, DVDs, CDs and other memory-provoking articles.

Mural projects transform Chilton, Stockbridge

A Wisconsin artist and a team of assistants created two gigantic downtown murals in Calumet County in the summer, turning the communities of Chilton and Stockbridge into a showcase of beauty and history. Calumet County Historical Society used a $5,000 grant from CACF to help fund a mural on Main Street, Chilton, depicting Chilton's founders. James Barany, an historian and art professor at Milwaukee Institute of Art and Design, researched, designed and painted the mural with the assistants. The Calumet County Mural Project not only increases access and visibility to the arts and local history, it includes an important educational component in the school districts that will help students understand how to foster art and history in their own lives. The murals will truly enhance Chilton's outdoor artistic environment for years to come.

Instruments for All

Music is an important subject for children to learn and can lead to better brain development, increase in human connection and even stress relief. But not all students can afford to rent a musical instrument. Chilton Middle School received a $3,150 grant from CACF to purchase band instruments. Students that qualify for Chilton School District's free and reduced fee lunch program can use the instruments for free, allowing all kids with an interest in band to participate. Maybe one of these young musicians will pursue a career in music. At the very least, this group of kids will feel included and experience the benefits that come with learning and performing music.
